- a. The project's current leadership and management structure and any changes to the management structure since the last data report; and
- b. In the first quarterly report, the selected applicant should provide a detailed project plan and schedule. The schedule must provide a list of key project deliverables or tasks, and their anticipated completion dates. Among the deliverables, participants must indicate the dates when each health care provider site is expected to be connected to the network and operational. Subsequent quarterly reports should identify which project deliverables, scheduled for the previous quarter, were met, and which were not met. In the event a project deliverable is not achieved, or the work and deliverables deviate from the work plan, the selected participant must provide an explanation.
- 9. Provide detail on whether network is or will become self sustaining. Selected participants should provide an explanation of how network is self sustaining.

See attached sustainability plan.

10. Provide detail on how the supported network has advanced telemedicine benefits:

The Missouri Telehealth Network currently has 150 sites statewide in 47 counties and the City of St. Louis. In FY09, providers in 20 medical specialties conducted more than 4,000 clinical encounters via telehealth. Missouri Telehealth Network sites include hospitals, federally qualified health centers, rural health clinics, community mental health clinics, a state habilitation center, an army hospital, two schools of medicine, a school of nursing, the Missouri Department of Health and Senior Services and many other types of health care facilities.

Telehealth reduces the need to travel for patients in state facilities. When telehealth is used, rural labs, radiology departments and pharmacies benefit because the specialists at the University utilize those services at the patient's location. Patient and family members also benefit through reduced travel costs and time away from work or school. Such efficiencies keep monies in the local (rural) area. One example is the reduced staff and transportation costs at the Marshall Habilitation Center (MHC) in Marshall, Missouri. It is estimated that each transport to MU from MHC costs the state funded MHC more than $500 per patient. Since equipment was placed at MHC in 2004, 706 trips have been avoided, resulting in an annual savings of approximately $60,000 to Missouri taxpayers. Savings are significant, but equally important is the improved quality of care as a result of the direct contact between the physician and the patient's care providers at the time of the visit. Similar potential for savings exists at other state funded sites. Fulton State Hospital now uses telehealth to avoid transporting patients.

Continuing education is critically important to doctors in rural and underserved communities. First and foremost, they are required to have 25 hours of Category 1 CME credit per year in order to maintain their medical license. These requirements mean that doctors have to leave the communities, where they are needed on a daily basis, in order to attend programs that will grant them CME hours. If these doctors have access to continuing education through telehealth, they can receive additional training about issues or topics relative to their communities without leaving the community, or the patients in need. This is particularly important because often they are the only healthcare providers in the area. Over 300 continuing medical education credits were granted to health professionals on the network in FY2009.

Data from payor sources was collected to reveal that utilization of telehealth saved Missourians significant travel time and dollars. In FY09, nearly 1,700 round trips from rural areas of Missouri to specialists' clinics in Columbia and Kirksville were avoided resulting in saved fuel costs of over $293,000. The average savings per trip was $175. (These calculations use the average of the two federal mileage reimbursement rates for 2008 - 54.5¢ per mile.) Over 538,000 miles of travel were avoided because of the availability of telehealth to these rural communities.

- a. Explain how the supported network has achieved the goals and objectives outlined in selected participant's Pilot Program application;
- b. Explain how the supported network has brought the benefits of innovative telehealth and, in particular, telemedicine services to those areas of the country where the need for those benefits is most acute;
- c. Explain how the supported network has allowed patients access to critically needed medical specialists in a variety of practices without leaving their homes or communities;
- d. Explain how the supported network has allowed health care providers access to government research institutions, and/or academic, public, and private health care institutions that are repositories of medical expertise and information;
- e. Explain how the supported network has allowed health care professional to monitor critically ill patients at multiple locations around the clock, provide access to advanced applications in continuing education and research, and/or enhanced the health care community's ability to provide a rapid and coordinated response in the event of a national crisis.

11. Provide detail on how the supported network has complied with HHS health IT initiatives:

As an Internet2 Sponsored Educational Group Participant (SEGP), access is available for all sites to the Internet2 backbone network, Abilene. The backbone connection to Internet2 is through the GigaPoP located in Kansas City and supported by the Great Plains Network (GPN), a consortium of Great Plains states dedicated to supporting scientific research through the use of networking technology.

- a. Explain how the supported network has used health IT systems and products that meet interoperability standards recognized by the HHS Secretary;
- b. Explain how the supported network has used health IT products certified by the Certification Commission for Healthcare Information Technology;
- c. Explain how the supported network has supported the Nationwide Health Information

Network (NHIN) architecture by coordinating activities with organizations performing NHIN trial implementations;

- d. Explain how the supported network has used resources available at HHS's Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ) National Resource Center for Health Information Technology;
- e. Explain how the selected participant has educated themselves concerning the Pandemic and All Hazards Preparedness Act and coordinated with the HHS Assistant Secretary for Public Response as a resource for telehealth inventory and for the implementation of other preparedness and response initiatives; and
- f. Explain how the supported network has used resources available through HHS's Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Public Health Information Network (PHIN) to facilitate interoperability with public health and emergency organizations.
- 12. Explain how the selected participants coordinated in the use of their health care networks with the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and, in particular, with its Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in instances of national, regional, or local public health emergencies (e.g., pandemics, bioterrorism). In such instances, where feasible, explain how selected participants provided access to their supported networks to HHS, including CDC, and other public health officials.

Since January, 2009, the Missouri Department of Health and Senior Services- Center for Emergency Response and Terrorism has provided five different educational seminars in which a total of 67 telehealth sites signed up for participation. The topics included Mass Casualty Management, Psychological Consequences of Terrorism, Dirty Bombs, Pulmonary Agents and ESSENCE.
